

Everything as a Service for voice, data, and cloud

Focused on automotive, hospitality, and medical. CloudUp Data & Voice brokers the whole data and communications stack and backs it with senior engineering, so the design, migration, and support come from the same people who sold it.

Voice and unified communications

Mitel, sold through VoIP Networks: hosted in the Cloud9 cloud, in a private customer cloud, on premise, or hybrid with local survivability.

GoTo Connect, sold through Jenne: all-in-one, AI-powered cloud communications.

Industry focus

Automotive: voice, connectivity, and network design for dealership environments.

Hospitality: Mitel voice with TigerTMS for property management, middleware, and guest services, delivered as a hospitality cloud solution.

Medical: reliable, survivable communications and secure networks for practices and facilities.

Carrier services and cloud brokering

Through Jenne: SIP trunking, connectivity, and infrastructure sourced and managed as one service.

Capabilities Overview

Voice, data, and cloud as a service

Data and network

Security: WatchGuard firewalls and security services.

SD-WAN: multi-site connectivity that keeps voice and business applications performing.

Internet access: AT&T as the preferred ISP.

Cloud

Microsoft and Azure: licensing and cloud through Pax8, Ingram Micro, and TD SYNnex.

AWS, private cloud, and hybrid cloud: hosting chosen for the workload, including AWS data center hosting through Opti9.

Backup and disaster recovery: protection and recovery planning, with Opti9.

How we work

One team. The engineers who recommend the design build it, migrate you onto it, and support it afterward.

Platform-agnostic. Cloud where it fits, private cloud or premise where it does not, and hybrid with local survivability when the phones and network must keep working.

Network first. Unified communications is an application. It performs only as well as the network under it, so we engineer that network first.
